

BOY PREACHER COMES HERE FOR REVIVAL

Wilson Holder to Preach at Centennial Baptist Church.

The boy preacher, Wilson Holder, 13 years old, from Baltimore, Md., begins a series of evangelistic services Tuesday night, October 2, at 8 o'clock, at the Centennial Baptist Church, Seventh and I streets northeast. His father, Rev. Rufus E. Holder, tells how Wilson began to preach:

"The boy began his career the first of this year. The first day of the new year I had a meeting in my church, the Riverside Baptist Church of Baltimore, Maryland. The meeting went on for a few days with but little interest, not many in attendance, the Christians were indifferent, no one cared, or seemed to care to be saved. This seemed to worry the boy. He finally said to me, 'Daddy, I want to speak.' He had spoken several times to children and had attracted some attention, had given an occasional testimony in other meetings. To encourage him I told him he could speak one night, expecting to take up the meeting myself and finish it. When I asked him what he was going to speak about I expected him to use one of the subjects he had used in the meetings with the children, but 'No,' he said, 'My subject is the Cross.' I said no more. It was marvelous the way that child not yet 13 talked about the cross. He could not of his own strength and knowledge have delivered such a wonderful message. The Lord surely was in the words he spoke. When he gave an invitation many came forward and professed faith in Christ. Of course there was no time left for me. I was as much surprised as any one else at the wonderful message he had given and the large results that followed."
